A Kidnaper Caught.

Versallies (ky.) Sun.

Last Friday a man and a boy appeared in Versailles, representing themselves as sign writers and soliciting employment.

Upon seeing them Bland Jones was at once reminded of an article which he had seen in the previous Sunday's Cincinnati Enquirer, and which article set forth that a Choctaw Indian, a sign-painter, had kidnaped an eleven-year-old boy in Cleves, O., and taken him off, and the boy's father was anxious for his return. The sign-painter was anxious for his return. The sign-painter was arrested and held while a telegram was sent to Cheinnati, asking for advice. The man at first claimed that the boy was his nephew, but afterward confessed that this nephew, but afterward confessed that this was not true. On Sunday the boy's father came over and got him. He also took the Choctaw back with him. The Choctaw, whose name is Tom Winslow, appeared in Cleves, O, some time last spring and opened a paint-shop. The boy became a pal of his, and since the end of school has been working in his shop, and became quite expert in the art of sign-painting. On the 1st instant the Choctaw disappeared, and the boy also. The Indian says the boy wanted to go, and the boy tells the same tale. It is probable that the boy is a natural tramp and wanted to get off from home.

E. H. Rollins, R....1883 H. W. Blair, R....1885 pointed a committee, with Senator Pendleton as chairman, to confer with a committee from the Republican cancus, and make report. A recess for half an hour was then taken, and the action of the committee is to be submitted to the cancus for ratification.

Rhode Island Senators and the Democrats would elect their man as the Democrats would elect their man as President pro tem. The election of a Secretary will be an after consideration. A suggestion has been thrown out that if the Republicans should make a factious opposition and withhold their votes that the Democrats could not elect, because 38 is not a majority of 76. But that will not hold good. If the Senate were full, 38 would not be a majority, but in the absence of the a majority, but in the absence of the problems of the Senate were full, 38 would not be a majority, but in the absence of the problems of the Senate were full, 38 would not be a majority. he a majority, but in the absence of the New York and Rhode Island Senators, a majority of the number answering is a ma-jority for business. That question was fully decided when the Southern States ceded in 1861. Changes in Twenty Years. Apart from all questions affecting the organization, there are some interesting reflections connected with the assembling of the Senate on Monday next. Of the Senators who will then meet Messrs, Sherman and Anthony will be the only ones who served in the session of 1861, when the Southern States seceded and Mr. Anthony will be the only one who has served continuously since that time. Within the twenty years the following Senators have

The Pemogratic Causes. Of the nativities of the Senators 2 were sented. The Democratic Caucus.

The Democratic Caucus.
The Democratic Senators met in caucus this morning in the room of the committees on revolutionary claims. The absentees were Senators Fair, Farley, Slater, Grover and Ransom. Before the caucus, all the Democratic Senators with whom The Carric talked, favored the complete organization of the Senate upon a democratic basis, so far as the President pro tem. and officers are concerned, and said they would also demand an equal distribution of the committees. The caucus was called to order at a few minutes past 11 o'clock, Senator Pendleton presiding.

It was whispered about that the Democratic Senators wanted to avoid anything like a deadlock, and to that end would proceed very carefully. It was said they would agree upon no plan of action that, in their opinion, would not be sustained by the party throughout the country. Nor would they agree to any plan of action that, in their opinion, would not feel justified in maintaining, even though it took all winter.

The Democratic Senators we in caucus was called to order to the weekly purchase of $2,000,000.

The Indian War.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 8.—Reports from the San Carlos reservation say that over 400 Indians are now out in different parties. The campaign will probably last all the winter. Col. MacKenzie is now in command, and Gen. Wilcox has returned to Tueson. The Chierichuse have crossed the line, and are now safe.

The Joint Committee. The joint committee of the two cancuses met at 2:15. The members are Messrs. Pendleton, Garland, Voorhees, Pugh and Davis, of the Democrats, and Edmunds, Allison, Logan, Sherman, and McMillau, of the Republicans.

The committee remained in session but a few minutes. The Democratic members

The committee remained in session but a few minutes. The Democratic members went in committed by the action, of their caucus, to insist on the election of the President of the Senate as the first act on assembling. The Republicans declined to confer on that basis, and nothing was done. The result of the caucuses had not been ascertained as we went to press.

The President and the Republican Senators.

The President was called on to-day by nearly all the Republican Senators in the city. Secretary Kirkwood spent some time with the President this afternoon. The President urged upon the Senators to-day the great necessity for harmony during the extra session, and also asked that they en-deavor to make the session a brief one.

The President and Ex-Senator Conkling.

At half-past 11 this morning ex-Senator Conkling, in company with Senator Jones, drove to the residence of the latter, and there met President Arthur. The three gentlemen retired to an upstairs room, and were in close consultation for several hours. President Arthur remained at home all day. New York, Oct. 8.—The somewhat singular and unexpected slipping off in the market late yesterday afternoon was the general subject of remark among the brokers of and traders at the Windsor last night. It was partly attributed to the sudden change of position made by the large room traders, who three were the stocks bought the day of the fore, and partly to the immense sales of Central Fas

GOV. HAMILTON, of Md., visited Westminster yesterday afternoon, and called on Rev. Dr. Murray, of the M. P. Church, and had an interview with him in reference to the marriage of Miss Clare Hamilton and Mr. John T. Stanhope. Mr. Stanhope also called on Dr. Murray yesterday evening for a certificate of marriage, but the doctor refused it on the ground that the representations had not been strictly accurate. Mr. Stanhope is only 20 and Miss Hamilton 17 years of age. years of age.

Cariosities in Advertisements.

In the Vienna journals there are many advertisements in French. Unfamiliarity advertisements in French. Unfamiliarity with the language sometimes make them read very queerly. Here is one: "A governess with diploma, would like to accompany a musical lady to the country and on the piano." Here is another: "Wanted—A French nurse who loves children of three, five and eight years." And here is the queerest: "Wanted—A professor to come twice a week to the house of a noble family, in order to reform the pronunciation of a parrot."

Another Mare's Nest.

The Post of this morning came out with the flaming announcement that the Government had been robbed of millions through the agency of certain claim attorneys and the collusion of clerks in the Pension Bureau. Millions sound large in the cars of a tax-paying community, and hence a natural disposition to find out the facts in the case. In order to do this officially, so to speak, The Carric called on Commissioner Dudley, who is one of the most painstaking and affable gentlemen connected with the Government. Furthermore, be is a man of grit. He hates shams and frauds, and has no use for them in any shape. The bearing of the following interview with the Colonel will be sufficiently explained when we state that in case he Boston, Mass., Oct. 3.—In regard to the details reported to have come from Secretary Windom in regard to the interview with him, published on Thursday morning, the Globe to-day says: "It has been given out in some circles in Boston by parties who were affected, that Secretary Windom had denied giving the information about his plans, which was printed in the Globe Thursday. We repeat that Mr. Windom said emphatically that he could not interafer in the fight between the balls and bears; that the Treasury Department would not be used as a medium to regulate the condition of affairs on Wall street, and that the Hon. Secretary cannot deny, and we intend to say that nobody is authorized to deny it for him. He may be induced to change his policy, but at 6 o clock Wednesday evening he male the statements attributed to me that I never entertained. You may say for me that I have no such suspicions, in fact that I believe there never was a set of clerks who could be so thoroughly trusted."

"But abouf this charge?"

"Well, I have only to say that this man, George Black, whose character is none of the best, has filed a false pension claim in this Department, and that when the facts in the case were presented to his own attorney he refused to be mixed up with his defense. Beyond this I have no charges to make. It may be possible that there is a back-door way to reach this bureau, but I don't know anything of it now, and, should I find it out, you may rest assured that I will go to the bottom of it on short time. You may say, however, as coming from me, that I don't know of any ring for the collection of a pension claims; that I don't suspect any body of clerks in my employ, and that I repudiate the sentiments attributed to me in the Post of this morning. When I find any evidences of guilt I will be prompt enough to make them known."

Garfield's Recreations Gath in Cin. Enquirer. General Anson McCook, an Ohio boy and New York Representative in Congress, was talking some last night about Garfield, with ment of Miss Hannah Nachman, niece of Mr. I. L. Blout, to Mr. Morris Clark.

JUDGE S. C. Mills, of this city, delivered an address at a meeting of the Sons of Jonadab at Annapolis on Thursday evening.

Messas, William Tunner, James Phillips, J. Thayer and E. H. Rowen, of this city, were registered in Baltimore yester-day. might be dreaming. He used to come over to the rooms of Amos Townsend, and I had rooms in the same house on H street, near Wormley's, and play pedro with us, McKinley, also a member of Congress from Ohio, generally made the four present. Pedro was Garfield's favorite game, though he would play whist or cuchre, and sometimes, as a recreation, a very small game of poker. He had a high capacity for amusements, and could divert his mind like a child. He was very fond of billiards, though of course he didn't get much time for it. It is seldom," continued he, "that you see in this world the perfect combination of a man of beart and man of head and also a man of important public station, like Garfield. To those who know him closely, he was a perfect well of boyish warmth and affection. Everything about him was natural and hearty, and yet we admired the big brain and experience we knew to be there, though we were never reminded of it unless some question came up calling for a verdict. Then we saw the mind instantly come out, like the lighting of a creatile in each sew. mind instantly come out, like the lighting of a candle in a dark room."

Two merchants of Louisville wrote a note to a married woman asking her to attend the races with them. She told her husband, read very queerly. Here is one: "A governess with diploma, would like to accompany a musical lady to the country and on the piano." Here is another: "Wanted—A French nurse who loves children of three, five and eight years." And here is the queerest: "Wanted—A professor to come twice a week to the house of a noble family, in order to reform the pronunciation of a parrot."

—Impoliteness is derived from two sources—indifference to the divine and contempt for the human.

The husband procured a good, heavy horse whip, gave it to his wife, and the two sallied forth. It was near midnight before they could find either of the two gallants, but at that hour they came across one of them. The husband seized him, while the wife inflicted a punishment which he will long remember. They have been searching for the other one, but he has taken good care to keep out of sight. The secondred who was whipped cried and begged for mercy, but the castigation went on until the insulted woman was weary.
